> To the numismatist the author's account of the numerous pieces of money of necessity which passed current during the siege should be interesting, and is probably little known. BARTHOLOMEUS DE GLANVILLE, of the Order of Minorites.

Incipit prohemiū de proprietatibus rerū fratris bartholomei anglici de ordine fratrū minorum. [Col.] Explicit tractatꝰ de *proprie*tatibus re*rum* editꝰ a Frē bartolomeo ãglico ordīs fratr*um* mino*rum.* [Cologne, no date, but about 1470.] Large folio, 247 unnumbered leaves, without signatures, catchwords, &c. B. M.

> First edition of a highly popular and successful book, which passed through many impressions in Germany before the close of the XVth century. That so many should have been demanded is a powerful evidence of the different notions and tastes in literary matters which formerly prevailed. Wynkyn de Worde, in the English edition printed at Westminster before 1501, states that Caxton executed an impression of the work at Cologne in Latin. Probably he refers to this ; but Caxton, perhaps, did little more, if he was actually concerned in its production, than assist in setting up the text as a journeyman.

Table, 10 leaves : a—z in eights, a i blank : A—Mm in eights, except that in Mm there is a 9th leaf. There is no Z in the second alphabet. B. M. (a i wanting.)

Bartholomeu⁹ de proprietatib3 rerum [This is in large white letters on a black ground, and is the whole of the title.] Wynkyn de Worde, [at Westminster before 1500,] folio, black letter, printed in two columns. A, 5 leaves: B, 8 leaves: b, 6 leaves: c—z in eights: two sheets of six and eight under irregular signatures, the recto of the last having Wynkyn de Worde's device, and the reverse blank: Book xii. with a new set of signatures—A—V in eights: X—Z in sixes: aa—cc in eights: dd—gg in sixes: hh—mm in eights: nn—oo in sixes, oo 6 having a duplicate of the title on the recto, and on the reverse the printer's large device. With numerous fine cuts. B. M. (the Banks copy.)

This English version, the earliest known to survive, of a writer whom Warton styles the Gothic Pliny, but who seems to have borrowed much of his material from the Speculum Historiale of Vincent of Beauvais, was executed by John Trevisa, Canon of Westbury in Gloucestershire. His conclusion or envoy occurs on oo iij verso, and states that the translation, made at the request of Thomas Lord Berkeley, was ended the 6th of February, 1398–9, in the 47th year of his lordship's age. See Hazlitt's Warton, 1871, ii. 297. Bibliographers have usually ascribed this noble old volume to 1494; but I see no authority for that date. Herbert thought that Ames might have had some reason for his statement to this effect, because his own copy wanted the concluding leaf, which might have had a note of the year of printing; but that leaf is in the Museum copy, and does not bear any evidence of the kind. Nor do I observe any exact internal clue.

Comedies, Tragi-comedies . . . 1651.

I have before me Dr. Bliss's copy of this book, bought of Thorpe, with the bookplate of "Thomas Cartwright of Aynho in the County of Northampton Esqr 1698." It is in the original calf binding, and on the fly-leaf Bliss notes: "A fair copy in the original state, with the cancelled leaves pp. 301, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, but those leaves not in their first state, i.e., with the blanks filled up, of which there is a copy in Christ Church Library. In general the duplicate or cancelled leaves are wanting. A duplicate copy in this copy sign. C 2, the marginal notes having been cut away in the original leaf. Since writing the above I have been able to make this Copy one of the most perfect known, having added the original leaves pp. 301–6 in the first state, & with the blanks filled in the letterpress: together with a variation in one of the leaves containing the commendatory verses by Lord Monmouth and T. P. baronet, the initials in the added leaf being replaced with a rose and crown and a harp and crown." At the end of the commendatory verses the publisher has this note: "We shall not trouble you with an Index, for already the Book is bigger than we meant, although we chose this Volume and Character purposely to bring down its bulk. . . . " Nevertheless, it is said that in a copy in the Bodleian are fragments of an Index.

The duplicate pages 301–6 contain: 1. On the Queen's Return from the Low-Countries; 2. Vpon the death of the Right valiant Sir Bevill Grenvill Knight; 3. On a vertuous young Gentleman that dyed suddenly. The verses on Grenvill are printed entire in the Oxford verses on his death, 1643 and 1684.

HERBAL.

Also it gyueth parfyte vnderstandynge of the booke lately prynted by me (Peter treueris) named the noble experiēce of vertuous handwarke of surgery. [Col.] Thus endeth the grete herbal with his tables which is translated out of Frensshe itō Englysshe. [Southwark, Peter Treveris, 1525–6.] Folio. Title, Table, &c., 5 leaves : A—Dd in sixes. With the device of Treveris on the last page and woodcuts. In two columns.

In Collections and Notes, 2nd Series, p. 701, I describe the edition printed by Treveris, 27th July 1526, which seems to correspond pretty closely with that of 1529. The present of course must have followed the Noble Experience of Surgery, 1525, which it cites as already in print, and perhaps therefore it intervened between the latter and the issue of July 1526.

The alleged impression of the Herbal by Treveris, 20th June 1516, I have not seen, nor had Herbert, I think, ever done so, as his account of it has every appearance of having been borrowed from Ames. The copy which I here record was stated in the auctioneers' Catalogue to be of 1516 indeed; but on examination I found it to be no such matter.

At the same time, as the month of printing differs according to Herbert, there is room for expectation that the editio princeps of the work may occur, though I am not at present aware of any collection which possesses it.

As also several Laws made, &c., at Boston, 7th of May and 17th of October, 1673," 5 leaves.

> "This code of laws gives a life-like picture of the manners and habits of life of the Early English Colonists of America. The laws regarding the observance of Sunday and attending Churches are most rigid, and the enactments against 'the cursed sect of Quakers' are indeed remarkable, being made by people who had themselves left their homes and friends to avoid religious persecution. To be whipped through three towns and banished upon pain of death are among the cruelties ordered to be inflicted on the unfortunate Quakers. Among the laws on marriage is one strictly forbidding the marriage of a widower with his late wife's sister. A copy of this book with the additional leaves and in such perfect condition as the present is of the rarest occurrence."—Ellis's Catalogue, whence this article is borrowed, as I just missed seeing it.

NORTH, FRANCIS DUDLEY, Third Lord North of Kirtling.

A Forest of Varieties . . . 1645.

On an examination of Park's copy of this book, afterward in the Bindley, Heber, and Currer Collections, I find that it contains, immediately after the title, a dedication to Elizabeth of Bohemia, and two leaves at the end described in the Currer Catalogue as cancelled. On one of these latter occurs: "A Register of Mournful Verses on a Melting Beauty." That copy resembled another before me in having MSS. notes in a coeval hand, probably the author's, and on the title, under the word Varieties, "Or rather a Wildernesse." The copy which I am using has on the title also Fra. North, written, I conclude, by the same person. But I am of opinion that the book was printed for friends, and that Lord North made corrections, and even wrote his name, in several copies; so that it is one of those cases in which it is almost impossible to arrive at knowing which was the author's own copy.

As the dedication is dated from Leith in January 1683, the discrepancy between the engraved and printed titles as to date is probably due to the employment of a plate which had been used for some earlier work.

SKEFFINGTON, SIR JOHN.

SKELTON, JOHN.

A ballade of the scottysshe kynge. [This is over a rough romance cut, under which the text begins. At the end occurs:] Amen / for saynt charite And god saue noble. Kynge / Henry / The. viij. [London, Richard Fawkes, 1513–14.] 4°, 2 leaves. B. M.

This ballad, perhaps the oldest printed one of its kind in the English language, was recovered from the wooden covers of an edition of Huon de Bordeaux, folio, Le Noir, 1513, in which occurred also the piece of the prose tract on Flodden wanted to complete the Britwell copy. The Huon de Bordeaux appears to have been bound by or for Fawkes, and his binder no doubt employed shop-waste for the end papers or pasteboard.

This is a first draught of what Skelton subsequently rewrote or considerably altered in his verses against the Scots printed with his Works. At the time this was written the news of the Scotish king's death had not been received in London, and Skelton merely echoes the then general belief when he speaks of him as a prisoner of war.

I cannot quite make up my mind whether this ballad does not form part of a larger tract—not of the prose tract, I think, because that was written on later and fuller information; yet it just completes the sheet of four, and the publisher would not be particular as to historical consistency.

The original writer states that his book represented the state of England in 1565, and was written by him when he had completed his fifty-first year. It is to be presumed, perhaps, that it was composed about the period to which it applies, though the author does not quite clearly say so. The first edition was in 1583, so that the MS. must have lain aside for seventeen years.

The Fearful Summer ends on B 2, and on B 3 begins the tract Against Swearing, promised in the first Oxford edition. But, instead of forming it into a separate publication, Taylor added it to the second impression of his Fearful Summer. It appears likely, from being printed of a larger size than the rest, that the body of the piece against swearing is merely a broadside reissued in book form, with a leaf of preface, and a concluding one with "My farewell to the famous Vniuersity of Oxford." The latter is omitted in the reprint among the Works in 1630. Perhaps Taylor's hospitable reception at Oxford prompted him to change the tone of his allusion to the country in this reprint of the tract on the Plague.

At the foot of the first title-page in the copy before me occurs: "Ex Dono Authoris. Arundell & Surrey. June 1640."

ADDITIONS.

[ This Appendix has been somewhat extended by the reception of items from the Solly and other sales, and also by the obliging loan to me of about eighty rare and curious tracts by Mr. Henry Gray of Leicester Square. These latter chiefly consisted of pamphlets relating to the Civil War in 1641–8, a series well-nigh interminable, though the pieces belonging to 1642 appear to be the most numerous.

The Earl of Crawford and Balcarres had the kindness to forward me (through Mr. Quaritch) the proof sheets of his privately printed Catalogue of Proclamations from Edward VI. to George II., in case I might wish to insert here such as had not otherwise fallen in my way. His Lordship's Catalogue is highly interesting, both from a historical and bibliographical point of view; but it proceeds on a different plan from my own.

My old friend, Mr. Halliwell Phillipps, has also afforded me the opportunity of going through his Early English collections, both in London and at Brighton.]

ALBERTUS, MAGNUS.

Liber Aggregationis . . . W. de Machlinia. 4°.

In the forty-ninth volume of Archæologia, Professor Ferguson, of Glasgow, has performed a very acceptable service to early English literature and typography by giving a copious account for the first time of the Liber Aggregationis and Secreta Mulierum. Of the former the Professor was so fortunate as to secure a copy at the Syston Park Sale (December 1884, No. 53), formerly belonging to Herbert, and described by the latter at page 1773 of his well-known work. But at that time the two tracts, which have since been separated, were bound up together. The question as to whether they were originally intended to make one book is difficult to settle, or which was the earlier in order, unless the word Necnon in the colophon to the Liber Aggregationis is to be received as a clue. Perhaps the Secreta Mulierum would be the likelier subject as a starting venture; and the absence of an imprint is also favourable to the hypothesis that it really constituted the first of two pieces in a volume, the second alone exhibiting the name of the printer.

ALLIBONE, JOHN, Master of Magdalen College School Oxford, a native of Buckinghamshire.

Sothebys, July 1886 (Simes), No. 1402, apparently part of some larger book, but complete in itself. I do not notice, however, in Herbert or in the British Museum Catalogue any work from the press of Kele, of which this could have made part.

London Printed by Richard Field, dwelling in the Blackfriers by Ludgate. 1594. 4°, A—K in fours, and a leaf of L. Dedicated by O. B. "To the Right Honorable Robert Devorax, Earle of Essex and Ewe . . .," after which comes "The Epistle to the Reader." The head-line on A 4 is "The Display of Follie;" but the running one throughout is "The display of vaine life." B. M., Bodleian and Sion College.

This piece is of peculiar curiosity as being apparently the only Warwickshire publication of the time of Shakespear, and indeed the only early piece connected with that county, except Lancham's Letter from Kenilworth, 1575, and Gascoigne's Entertainment, 1576, so that all three productions arise, as it were, from the same vicinity. Moreover, the name in the imprint is of local significance, for Richard Field, the publisher of this little volume and fellow-townsman of the great poet, had brought out the year before the Venus and Adonis, and this year followed up with the Lucrece of Shakespear; and the Questions of Concernings is of further interest as containing phrases and allusions of a popular character. Not more than four copies of it, one slightly imperfect, appear to be known.

CHEKE, SIR JOHN.

The hurt of Sedition . . . 1576.

An almost uncut copy before me bears at the top of the title: "xij shillings stirling," and at the foot: "Robert Gordone." Now, this raises the question, whether Sir Robert Gordon of Gordonstoun gave 12s. of English currency for the volume, or bought it at Stirling, where he purchased other books, for twelve shillings Scots = one shilling of English computation. As it is a small volume, which can scarcely have been published at more than a shilling sterling, I am inclined to accept the latter hypothesis.

CHRISTMAS.

Christmas Carols. Wynkyn de Worde, 1521. 4°.

There are repeated entries in the Account-Book of John Dorne, bookseller at Oxford, for 1520, of "Kesmas corals;" but whether these were in book or broadsheet form does not appear.

[Col.] Londini in officina Thomæ Bertheleti typis impress. Cum priuilegio ad imprimendū solum. M.D.XLII. 8°, A—D in eights, D 6 with the colophon and device, and D 7–8 blank.

CHURCH.

The Chirche of the Euyll Men and Women.

Translated by Henry Watson. Wynkyn de Worde, 1511. 4°.

See Osterley Park Catalogue, 1885, No. 187. I did not see this lot, unfortunately, and it has gone to America. But as I notice an edition printed in the same year by Pynson, that other book was probably identical, as in a few other early cases, with this, the imprint being the only difference. Both the issues in London doubtless followed the original Paris impression described in my Collections and Notes, 1876, p. 480.

CICERO, M. T.

The thre bokes of Tullius offyce, bothe in latyn tongue and englysh, late translated and dyligently corrected by Robart Whytynton laureat poete. Prima Pars. Cum priuilegio regali. [Col.] Imprynted at London in Fletestrete at the sygne of the Sunne, by Johñ Byddell. In the yere of our Lorde God. 1540. 8°, A—X in eights. With the mark of the printer below the colophon. The title is within a border. B. M.

A reimpression, with the preliminaries omitted, of W. de Worde's edition of 1534. The copy employed is in the original binding, probably from the printer's own workshop, with fly-leaves from a book printed by W. Middylton, and is doubtless in the precise state in which it came from the press. It was a constant practice on the part of our old publishers to suppress introductory matter in second or later issues, and the fact of Whittinton being dead in 1540 may have had something to do with it in this case.

The copy mentioned by Herbert seems to have corresponded in title with that here used, and to have had no other. I think that he followed Ames, and that Dibdin followed him.

Tullius de Senectute Both in latyn and Englysshe . . . Cum priuilegio regali. [Col.] Imprynted at London in Fletestrete / at the sygne of the Sonne / by me John Byddell. 8°. Sothebys, Dec. 10, 1886, No. 155. Byddell also printed it with the date of 1540. There is no reason why so popular a work should not have been frequently republished. Compare Bibl. Coll. 1882, p. 682.

Dedicated to the King.

A curious piece, containing some verses at the end, as well as a list of the author's other books, with a notice that if any one intended to reprint any of them, he should give him notice, in order to enable him to make corrections ; which seems to indicate the absence of any law or principle of copyright.

COOKERY.
This is the Boke of Cookery. R. Pynson, 1500. 4°.

A MS. copy of this work is in the library of the Earl of Leicester at Holkham, and has been printed with an introduction by Mrs. Napier, 4°, 1882. The Editor was evidently unaware that it had been published before. In the Antiquitates Culinariæ, edited by Warner, 1791, there is a much fuller text of the Feast at the Enthronement of Archbishop Nevill, and it is dated 1465; this also occurs at the end of Rabisha's Whole Body of Cookery Dissected, 8°, 1661.

John Byddell reproduced the Book of Cookery about 1530; and it was often printed during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, but with the omission of the Royal Feasts and with other changes.

Willis was a friend of Couch, who had died in Virginia before the publication, and he was the means of securing the MS. for Pack, who had previously perused it, or a copy of it, in the hands of a resident of Carolina, while the latter was staying in London.

In the British Museum is a broadside by Couch, apparently belonging to 1667, entitled "New England's Lamentation for the late Firing of the City of London."

This copy wants a leaf. The work is probably a translation from the French, though not stated to be so by Darcy, who describes it, on the contrary, in his epistle to Anne Herbert, as the portraiture of her noble and excellent perfections. He also calls it his maiden literary essay. The title is within a border, and the volume is printed on unusually thick paper. Possibly it was printed for Darcy, as no other copy seems to be known.

The letterpress portion of the title appears to have been partly filled in by hand at the time, the printer not having any case large enough.

FRENCH LANGUAGE.

Here is a good boke to lerne to speke frenche. R. Pynson, [1492–3]. 4°.

This edition by Pynson is the earlier of the two known of the tract above-named, and also one of the most ancient productions of his press. The type is very archaic, and the signatures are on the left-hand side of the leaf. The edition by Wynkyn de Worde, printed at Westminster before 1501, corrects the text here and there, and has a regular title, Pynson's commencing without any attempt at one beyond a sort of headline.

One of the editions of this vocabulary is doubtless the work registered in the MS. account-book of John Dorne, bookseller of Oxford, for 1520, under the title of frans and englis.

FULWOOD, WILLIAM.

M. for Iohn Groue, and are to be sold at his Shop, at Furniuals Inne Gate in Holborne. 1629. 4°, A—C in fours, first and last leaves blank. With a preface by the publisher. B. M. (the Roxburghe copy.)

In the two later editions of 1630 and 1658, the title is varied, and the names of Gallobelgicus as the author and Mercurius Britannicus as the translator, do not occur. The foreign origin of the tract is, doubtless, a mere fiction.

GOULART, JEAN.
Admirable and Memorable Histories . . . 1607.

This volume contains a series of stories or relations similar to some found in Measure for Measure, &c. But the analogy is of the least possible moment; and it is a very dull and foolish publication, of which only the first volume appeared in English.

Dedicated by Hayward to Master Thomas Powle, Esquire, one of the six clerks in Chancery. B. M.

As Hayward describes himself as Powle's "daily wellwisher," the former was probably connected with him personally or officially.

In the dedication, which appears to be the only interesting portion of the book from its local and personal allusions, the author states that he commends the perusal to Stubbe's two daughters, his cousin Yelverton and Lady Strange; to Mr. Robert Rudde of St. Florence in South Wales, and Mr. Henry Goodlye of Onehouse in Suffolk, his tutors; to his singular friend, Dr. Porter of Cambridge, and to his friends the parishioners of Edgfield.

RANDOLPH, THOMAS, of Trinity College, Cambridge.

The Ex-Ale-tation of Ale. Written by a Learned Pen. London, Printed by J. R. 1668. 8°, A in eights.

This impression does not contain the Latin version by T. C. P.

In a political tract called A Curse against Parliament Ale, 1649, there are on the title-page the subjoined lines:—

"Tom Randal did once, in a merry Tale, Write the Commendation of a Pot of Good Ale,"— under which title the present production was printed in 1642.

I see in the volume described as Ben Johnson's Jests, 1761, an anecdote of "one Thomas Randal"—no doubt the poet; but it has the air of being unauthentic.

At an auction in Leicester Square a few years ago, a copy of Chaucer's Works, 1561, folio, occurred with the autograph of Tho. Randolphe on the top of the title, and at the foot Thomas Randolphe to Thomas his Sone; which, according to the cataloguer, was "doubtless the autograph of the author of the Muses' Looking Glass, and the friend of Shakespeare." It was, however, no such thing; nor was even the poet Randolph a friend of Shakespear.

Tables of Gold and Silver . . . 1651. 8°.

I think it a misapprehension to distinguish between Reynolds of Exeter, compiler of God's Revenge, and Reynolds of the Assay Office in the Tower Mint, as there is almost absolute proof that the God's Revenge was written by the same person who translated the Treatise of the Court, by Refuges, 1622, while the latter was almost certainly from the same hand as prepared these Tables. See Coll. and Notes, 1st Series, p. 357.

Dedicated by the translator to the Marquis Dorset. B. M.

As Henry Grey, last Marquis of Dorset, was created Duke of Suffolk in October 1551, this book was doubtless printed before that date.

6. Bibliographical Collections and Notes. SECOND SERIES. 1876-82. Medium 8vo. 1882.

   Uniform with First Series. About 10,000 titles on the same principle as before.

   "Mr. W. C. Hazlitt's second series of Bibliographical Collections and Notes (Quaritch) is the result of many years' searches among rare books, tracts, ballads, and broadsides by a man whose specialty is bibliography, and who has thus produced a volume of high value. If any one will read through the fifty-four closely printed columns relating to Charles I., or the ten and a-half columns given to 'London' from 1541 to 1794, and recollect that these are only a supplement to twelve columns in Hazlitt's Handbook and five and a-half in his first Collections, he will get an idea of the work involved in this book. Other like entries are 'James I.,' 'Ireland,' 'France,' 'England,' 'Elizabeth,' 'Scotland' (which has twenty-one and a-half columns), and so on. As to the curiosity and rarity of the works that Mr. Hazlitt has catalogued, any one who has been for even twenty or thirty years among old books will acknowledge that the strangers to him are far more numerous than the acquaintances and friends. This second series of Collections will add to Mr. Hazlitt's well-earned reputation as a bibliographer, and should be in every real library through the English-speaking world. The only thing we desiderate in it is more of his welcome marks and names, B.M., Britwell, Lambeth, &c., to show where all the books approaching rarity are. The service that these have done in Mr. Hazlitt's former books to editors for the Early-English Text, New Shakspere, Spenser, Hunterian, and other societies, has been so great that we hope he will always say where he has seen the rare books that he makes entries of."—Academy, August 26, 1882.
